INTRODUCTION

Nationally recognized for its conservative fiscal practices, Virginia has one of the fairest and most stable tax structures of the 50 states. Both businesses and individuals carry their share of the tax load. The General Assembly has kept taxes on industry competitive and has eliminated many tax irritants. The state corporate income tax rate, one of the lowest in the nation, has not increased since 1972. Virginia also offers a very modest local tax bill for industry. Items taxed at the state level are not taxed at the local level, with the exception of sales and use tax; and Virginia taxes new and existing industries equally.

Tax Jurisdiction

This publication summarizes local taxes on businesses by Virginia's cities and counties. Virginia differs from most states in that its counties and cities are separate taxing entities. A company pays either county or city taxes, depending upon its location--it does not pay both. If a company is located within the corporate limits of a town, it pays county taxes and town taxes, except for utility taxes which are paid only to the town if levied by both jurisdictions. Town rates may be found in the bulletin, Local Tax Rates, from the Virginia Department of Taxation. In almost every instance, a town uses the same assessment policy for tax purposes as the county in which it is located.

Virginia statutes permit the creation of sanitary and other special purpose districts. If a company is located in one of these districts, it would pay a modest levy in addition to the basic county or city levy for some or all property taxes.

Local Taxes on Manufacturers

At the local level, a Virginia manufacturer is liable for the following taxes:

- * Real estate tax
- * Machinery and tool tax
- * Industrial utility taxes
- * Tangible personal property tax on road-licensed vehicles

In Virginia, a manufacturer's inventory, furniture, fixtures, and corporate aircraft are not taxed, nor does a manufacturer pay business license tax on gross receipts when the sales are at wholesale and occur at the place of manufacture. Manufacturing companies also receive broad exemptions from state and local sales and use taxes on purchases used directly in production and in research and development.

Merchants' Capital Tax

Forty-five of Virginia's 95 counties impose a merchants' capital tax. None of Virginia's cities impose the tax; rather, all 38 cities opt to impose the business license tax discussed below, which is in lieu of a merchants' capital tax. Thus, a locality may impose either the merchants' capital tax or the business license tax, not both. Under the merchants' capital tax, "capital" generally is defined as merchandise for sale, including: inventory of stock on hand, certain daily rental passenger cars, and certain daily rental property. The situs for assessment and taxation is the locality in which the property is physically located on the locality's tax day (usually January 1).

Business License Tax

Localities may impose local license taxes on businesses, trades, professions, occupations, and callings. Most business license taxes are based on "gross receipts", and localities have the option of taxing some classifications of business and not taxing others. Table 11 covers five classifications of businesses as defined by the Virginia Department of Taxation's Guidelines: retailer, mail order, wholesaler, financial services, and business services.

Sources

In the spring of 2013, the University of Virginia's Weldon Cooper Center for Public Service surveyed all 95 counties and 38 cities. The tax information in this publication is based on the survey responses. Assessment ratios for real estate taxes were obtained from the Virginia Department of Taxation and are based on an annual analysis of real estate transactions in each locality.

Additional information on taxes is included in the Virginia Economic Development Partnership's publication, Virginia: A Guide to Establishing A Business. The Guide summarizes the major state and local taxes on businesses as well as major personal taxes.

Virginia statutes require reassessments to be made at 100 percent of fair market value. However, because of rising real estate values and most localities reassessing only periodically, actual assessment ratios are usually lower than 100 percent. Each year, the Virginia Department of Taxation examines real estate transactions, comparing real estate assessments effective on the date of the property's sale with the selling price of the property. The Tax Department's ratios of assessed values to selling prices for 2013 are shown in this table. They represent the best measures of actual assessment ratios in Virginia localities.

1: District levies are imposed in addition to the basic county or city levy.

2: The county levy in the town of West Point is $0.27 per $100 of assessed valuation.

*The "effective tax rate" in each locality was computed by multiplying the assessment ratio by the nominal tax rate. Unlike the tax on real estate which is based on the fair market value of the property, the tax on machinery and tools can be based on the original total capitalized cost or the depreciated cost (book value). The original total capitalized cost of machinery and tools is usually greater than the depreciated cost defined as original cost less depreciation. Thus, comparisons of effective tax rates are valid only among localities using the same assessment value.

- 1: District levies are imposed in addition to the basic county or city levy.
- 2: The county levy in the town of West Point is $1.21 per $100 of assessed valuation.

*The "effective tax rate" in each locality was computed by multiplying the assessment ratio by the nominal tax rate. Unlike the tax on real estate which is based on the fair market value of the property, the tax on machinery and tools can be based on the original total capitalized cost or the depreciated cost (book value). The original total capitalized cost of machinery and tools is usually greater than the depreciated cost defined as original cost less depreciation. Thus, comparisons of effective tax rates are valid only among localities using the same assessment value.

1: District levies are imposed in addition to the basic county or city levy.

2: The county levy in the town of West Point is $2.25 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Note: In some localities, the nominal tax rate and/or assessment ratios may differ for tangible personal property used in research and development and certain categories of tangible personal property, i.e. computer equipment, airplanes.

Note: State law prohibits localities from imposing the consumer utility tax at a rate higher than 20 percent, unless they had higher rates in effect on July 1, 1972, in which case they may continue to impose the tax at the higher rates but may not increase them.

Effective January 1, 2001, the General Assembly repealed the utility license tax on utility providers of gas and electric power and rearranged the rate structure of the utility consumers' tax for electricity and natural gas consumption (Section 58.1-3814). The taxes are now per kilowatt hour of electricity (kWh) used by the consumer or per hundred cubic feet (CCF) of gas delivered monthly to consumers.

*The local consumers' utility tax for landline and wireless phones was eliminated on January 1, 2007 (HB 568, Chapter 780). Telephone service will now be taxed under the Communications Sales and Use Tax. The Communications Sales and Use Tax is 5 percent of the total amount paid by customers on all voice, video and audio communications services. The only major exception will be fees for Internet access, which federal law exempts from state and local taxation.

Utility taxes are paid only to the town if levied by both town and county.

TABLE 13

LOCAL TAX INCENTIVES IN ENTERPRISE ZONES

(Calendar Year 2013 or Fiscal Year 2013-2014)

The Virginia Enterprise Zone Program, administered by the Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD), offers business incentives to encourage job creation and investment within designated zones across the Commonwealth.

There are currently 57 designated Enterprise Zones in Virginia. Enterprise Zones are designated for an initial 10-year term with the possibility of two five-year renewal periods. Zones already in existence prior to 2005 may run out a 20-year designation period.

The State offers two grant-based incentives: the Job Creation Grant and the Real Property Investment Grant.

Participating localities may also offer additional local incentives to qualified businesses and investors within a zone as long as these incentives conform to the requirements of the Virginia and United States Constitutions. Localities have the opportunity to amend their incentive packages every 12 months.

The following local tax incentives are offered to businesses and investors within Enterprise Zone boundaries in the localities listed below. For localities with multiple zone designations, incentives may not be available in each of the zones or may differ within the locality. Information about additional local incentives (non-tax related) may be obtained from the Virginia Economic Development Partnership, the Department of Housing and Community Development or from the following localities:
